Hello, UPS Race Fans!

David Ragan had a rare weekend off from racing in the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series, but that didn't keep him away from the track. David competed in the Legends Million Dollar race at Charlotte Motor Speedway on Saturday night and finished fourth after starting second in the main event.

Combine the No. 6 Ford Fusion with the quickest crew in the pit and you get life in the fastlane.

David's racing roots trace back to the Legends Car Series and when the chance to compete in the one-of-a-kind race came up, David was one of the first drivers to throw his hat into the racing ring.

"This race is something that had never been done in really any type of short-track racing series, and it's a good opportunity for young guys and girls that are trying to get to the next level of racing to be seen," said David. "I'm glad this race was during one of our off weekends so I could participate."

David was sponsored for the race by UPS Ready Technology Provider, Oz Development, Inc., whose UPS Worldship tool, OzLINK, is a high performance way to rate, ship and track with UPS.

David will make an appearance on Race Hub on Monday night to talk about the Legends race and the solid 12th-place finish the UPS team had in Chicagoland. Race Hub airs at 7 pm Eastern Time on SPEED Channel.

This weekend, it's back to NASCAR racing as the UPS team heads to Indianapolis Motor Speedway for the Brickyard 400. Be sure to catch the race on ESPN at 1 pm on Sunday.
